Cambridge Regattas, Charles Marshall, 1 October 2008

Charles Marshall, native and lifelong resident of Dorchester County, left Dorchester only to serve in the Navy during WWII. But even before that, he was fascinated with boats and boat races. He would tell us as a young boy walking down the street from home with his father to watch the races from Long Pier on the Choptank. He would become a master of action Photography, catching the drops of water in the sun glistening as the hull lifted, nearly airborne. In his talk, he distilled more than 50 years of the boat races on the Choptank and shared many of his color photographs.
